

Loyalty Activity

POP A QUESTION (Discussion, 25 minutes)

Use this activity to connect loyalty to real-life situations.

Cut out the questions on this page and insert each question into a deflated balloon. Blow up the balloons and tape them to a wall or desk. Write "I WILL SHOW LOYALTY" on the face of the balloons with a permanent marker.

Invite one student at a time to pop a balloon and read the question so everyone can hear it. Discuss each question in small groups or as a class.

-  A close friend tells you he found $10 underneath the teacher's desk. He is all excited about his "good luck." What is the right thing to do?
-  You have been sick, and your mom said you are not allowed to play at recess today. But all your friends want to play soccer and they won't have even teams unless you play. What is the right thing to do?
-  You are going to play basketball with some of your friends, and your younger brother who isn't very good at basketball asks if he can play too. What is the right thing to do?
-  You are riding bikes to the store with your sister and some friends. Your sister can't go as fast as everyone else, so she is way behind. She keeps yelling for you to slow down, but your friends are in a hurry to get to the store. What is the right thing to do?
-  It is summer vacation and you are on a picnic with your friends. You are about to eat your second sandwich when you notice your friend has nothing to eat because he forgot his lunch. What is the right thing to do?
-  Your grandmother who lives next door is sick and can't get out of bed. She is really lonely. What is the right thing to do?
-  You are talking to a friend and she starts to say mean things about one of your classmates. What is the right thing to do?

-  You are grounded for a week because you broke your parents' rules. One of your friends found out you were grounded and started to talk about how unfair and mean your parents were for grounding you. What is the right thing to do?
-  You are talking with a group of friends you want to impress, and one starts to make fun of your sister. What is the right thing to do?
-  While your class recites the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag, a couple of friends laugh about a joke they heard earlier. They start to tell the joke to you. What is the right thing to do?
-  Your class has just been let out for recess and you can't wait to jump rope. But as you run to get a rope, you see one of your friends sitting on a bench crying. What is the right thing to do?
-  Your teacher instructs you to get a book from the library and return to class immediately. You find the book and are ready to take it back when the librarian asks you to help her put books on the shelf. What is the right thing to do?
-  You are walking home from school and you see one of your classmates pushing your brother around. What is the right thing to do?
-  You promised your grandfather that you would help him rake his yard right after school today, but one of your friends just invited you to ride his new bike. What is the right thing to do?
-  Your family has guests coming for dinner in a few hours. Your mom isn't able to clean the house because dinner takes longer to prepare than she thought it would. Your dad can't help because he is still at work. All you planned to do was play outside until guests arrived. What is the right thing to do?
-  Your parents are away for the evening and your older sister watches you while they are gone. Your sister asks if you want to watch a TV show that you know you are not allowed to watch. What is the right thing to do?
